

Our cookies and privacy policy

Like many other websites, ours uses cookies. This is really to help us to use the website most effectively, it is not to collect information about you. We also use Google Analytics, so that the friendly bots are Google can send me information such as how long people spend on one of my webpages. Again, it's a tool to use our internet presence to its full capacity.

We also have a privacy policy to protect you. For example, we will only use your data to help us best deliver our information and services to you, and not for any other use. We will not be sharing it with others.

If you would like to know what information we have about you, or you need me to correct or refrain from using any, just emailing me on marianne@peninsula-property.co.uk